DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rusch [US 4,222,019] in view of Brackett et al. [US 3,602,852].

Rusch discloses a circuit breaker [figure 1] comprising:

- opposing fixed and movable contacts [24, 26];
- line and load terminals [3, 4] connected to the contacts;
- a movable contact support member [25] holding the movable contact at one end thereof;
- an operating mechanism including a toggle mechanism [figure 1, column 4, lines 20-40];
- a coil [18] connected with the load terminal operatively connected to the moving contact;
- a coil yoke [16] formed from a single plate; and
- a trip lever [19] of a disengaging device mounted for rotational movement, upon a fault condition, relative to the yoke of the coil and separated from the operating mechanism [figure 1].

Rusch disclose the instant claimed invention except for explicit showing of the operating mechanism and yoke assembly being supported by a frame.

Brackett et al. disclose a circuit breaker [figure 4] having an operating mechanism and yoke assembly supported on a frame mounted on bosses within a casing [figure 1, abstract].

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the frame support design of Brackett et al. for the operating mechanism of Rusch in order to provide sufficient support and distribution for the force applied by the operating mechanism.

Claim 11 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rusch, as modified, as applied to claim 9 above, and further in view of Kawashima et al. [US 5,874,877].

Rusch disclose everything claimed except the explicit disclosure of the yoke being held in a groove within a sidewall of the housing.

Kawashima et al. disclose a circuit breaker [figure 1] having a coil [11] with a yoke [25] mounted in a side wall of the casing [1, column 6, lines 45-62].

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the coil mounting design of Kawashima et al. to mount the coil yoke of Rusch, in order to secure the coil in the housing.

Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11

Art Unit: 2832

F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 1-11 are provisionally rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-10 of copending Application No. 09/764,289. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the trip lever does not need that specific support of 09/764,289.

This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection because the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 06-25-04 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues Rusch does not teach applicant's claimed circuit breaker in which the trip lever of a disengaging device is mounted on a yoke of the coil. Examiner disagrees. Rusch discloses a trip lever, element 19, mounted on and bearing against a yoke, element 16, 23, of a coil 18, see column 2, lines 37-54, as claimed and disclosed by applicant.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).
